General French & French for French Teachers (FG FPF) b : « Make use of an outside visit in class »

Introduction:

Using sites outside the classroom is, according to our experience, an effective and original way of putting the linguistic knowledge taught in a truly authentic context.

This course will offer you both the opportunity to discover the city of Aix-en-Provence and especially its cultural sites but also to exploit the urban space as a possible support for your teaching.

Accompanied visit of the historical old town of Aix: the first steps towards a pedagogical use.

Improve visits with use of photo/video/other:

Using sites outside the classroom opens up the possibility for both the teacher and the learners to create authentic and original materials that can then be exploited in the classroom. Photos, videos or even audio documents are all useful tools to make our teaching even more interesting for students. This unit will suggest you to conceptualize the design of such tools for the class. We ask you to kindly bring your own devices (smart phone, camcorder, camera or Ipad).

Accompanied visit of a cultural place:

Aix-en-Provence is a city where art is omnipresent. Museums or sites are the expression of different artistic reflections through the ages. Beyond our personal knowledge and the enrichment of our general culture, these places can also be considered as possibilities offered for use within the framework of the teaching of French. It is these two aspects that this unit proposes to you to discover

Build activities linked to an outside visit:

Places of culture and, more generally, urban space offer a great potential for the creation of class activities that make your teaching even more attractive, profitable and efficient for our students. This unit will offer you to envisage and to think together to the implementation of these activities in the broad sense for the class.

Course dates available for 2 weeks:

- from 7th of January to 18th of January 2019
